

SUSTAINABILITY

Sustainable development and Green Economy are the great challenges that our society and the business system have to face with growing responsibility in order to increase competitiveness on the markets and contribute to the growth and well-being of the country. Indeed, businesses, institutions and civil society have to work together to build a new economic model based on the respect for environment and attention to the scarcity of resources, through the sharing and application of sustainability principles, through the diffusion of clean technologies and the promotion of conscious consumption.

The Sustainable Development Goals or Global Goals are a collection of 17 interlinked global goals designed to be a "blueprint to achieve a better and more sustainable future for all".
